Paris Is Testing Vacuum Cleaners

Filter the Air

By Andreas Freund
Oct. 19 (NYT).—Two mysterious sets up today in the grimy Gare de l'Est in Paris and one schoolboy asking: "Are they for launching a moon?"
is no. They are giant air filters, as a means of combating air pollution. They are 16 and a half feet high and with about five feet, are basically over-cleaning with a filter in the top and four apertures at the base, the top is by an electric fan and sucked all filters to the top, and out again, dilution. Or so it is hoped.
ateurs Gréant," as they have been dubbed, were commissioned by Electricite, the state electricity monopoly, by Bertin et Compagnie, makers of process 557,000 cubic feet of air per minute in their filters 80 pounds of pollution a year.
men were still busy connecting with the structures. It was hoped ready to function by Friday. Will a technician replied: on terrace—be tested for several months. If they are conclusive, on undisclosed number of the air filters will be erected elsewhere in Paris. The timing of the experiment roughly coincides with an alarming increase in air pollution here last week. Because of a subway workers' strike, many more cars were on the roads than normal.

Irish Seize Guns Sent From U.S. Six Trunkloads Arrive on QE-2

CORK, Ireland, Oct. 19 (AP).—Customs officials today seized six trunkloads of arms shipped into the Irish Republic from New York aboard the British liner QE-2.
The submachine guns, pistols and hand grenades were apparently destined for the Irish Republican Army (IRA). British Army intelligence sources here said that a steady stream of arms for the IRA is coming into Ireland.
The customs men found the arms at Cobh harbor near here when they became suspicious of the weight of the trunks, which had not been declared.
It was the second load of arms apparently involving the IRA to be discovered in the last four days. Dutch police seized more than three tons of Czech-made weapons aboard a Belgian plane at Amsterdam's airport on Saturday. A spokesman for the Czechoslovak Embassy in London denied involvement. "We produce small arms and export them," he said today, "but we never supplied arms to the IRA."
Passenger Missing
The man to whom the QE-2 trunkload was registered has not been seen since he went ashore from the ship, which anchored in the harbor early today en route to Southampton from New York.
A police spokesman added, "It was all the very latest equipment." He said the crates had been labeled with the name "Mr. Walsh" and a cabin number. "Of course, the name means nothing," he added.
The British Army has long believed that money from Irish-American IRA sympathizers has been used to buy arms for the gunmen, who want to unite Northern Ireland, which is mainly Protestant, with the predominantly Roman Catholic republic.
Other intelligence sources in Belfast said that Communist weapons, including some heavy enough to knock out armored cars, had already been landed in the republic from small boats to be smuggled to the IRA in Northern Ireland.
In London, a debate in Parliament continued on allegations that British troops in Northern Ireland have tortured and brainwashed detainees suspected of being IRA men.
Inquiry Is Started
Home Secretary Reginald Maudling said the government committee under Sir Edmund Compton was investigating the charges, but stressed: "Intelligence is of enormous importance in defeating the gunmen."
Bernadette Devlin, the Northern Ireland, Catholic leader and a member of Parliament, said attacks on the police in the province were increasing because people believed "these men are engaged in the torturing of people in internment."
This will go on until the charges are refuted, she warned.
In Belfast, troops arrested 10 more IRA suspects in dawn raids. At least 250 men are already being held in internment camps.
An army patrol came under sniper fire in the city, but no soldiers were hit. Gunmen held up two Belfast banks and got away with $3,000. The IRA uses bank raids to finance its activities.

But Deep Split Appears Laborites to Vote as a Bloc Against Entry Into Market

By Anthony Lewis
LONDON, Oct. 19 (NYT).—The Labor party's fundamental split on the issue of Europe was dramatically displayed at a meeting of its members of Parliament today.
The MPs met to consider what the party stance should be a week from Thursday, when the House of Commons will vote on British entry into the Common Market. During two turbulent hours of debate the MPs took these two key votes:
● By a majority of 159 to 89, they made the party line outright opposition to entry on the terms negotiated by the Conservative government.
● By 149 to 111, they demanded that every Labor member support that line.
The second decision flew in the face of last night's surprise move by Prime Minister Edward Heath to give Conservative MP, a free vote on the Common Market. That is, every Tory will be free to make up his own mind without party orders.
Labor members favoring the market argued that it was illogical and incongruous for the opposition to try to enforce a hard line on such a great issue when the government itself was not doing so. Most observers had in fact assumed for months that a government free vote would mean one for all MPs.
But the party's left wing and other strong opponents of British entry were furious at what they considered a last-minute maneuver by Mr. Heath. They insisted on firm party discipline in behalf of the anti-market line.
The 149-to-111 vote, though it showed a majority in favor of party discipline on the market issue, was generally regarded as a defeat for the anti-marketers. The reason is that orders to vote this way or that cannot be effective when a party is so evenly split.
Whatever the party orders formally say, it is clear that a large bloc will now vote for entry. They (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Denmark Plans Surcharge, Like U.S., on Imports

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 19 (NYT).—On its first day in office, Denmark's Social Democratic government today slapped a 10 percent import surcharge on two-thirds of this country's imports.
Premier Jens Otto Krag wanted to rush the necessary legislation through parliament today, but the vote will not be taken until tomorrow. Only the government party and the other socialist parties are voting for the bill, but they can get it through with a one-vote majority.
Ambassadors from several countries were called to the Foreign Ministry this afternoon to be informed about the surcharge. It had been introduced, government officials said, to strengthen the currency, improve the balance-of-payments situation and the economy before Denmark joins the European Common Market.
The import is restricted—that is, it will be lowered to 7 percent within a year, thereafter to 4 percent, and will be abandoned at the end of March, 1973. That will be in good time before the Danes enter the Common Market, Per Haekkerup, minister of the economy, said today.
The surcharge will be a heavy blow to Sweden, which is troubled by unemployment. It will also hit many other countries, including Denmark's present partners in the European Free Trade Association and its future partners in the EEC.
The underdeveloped countries are exempted from the surcharge. The present chairman of the GATT Council in Geneva is the Danish ambassador to Switzerland, Hans Erik Thranne. He recently reproached the United States for introducing its surcharge; now he has to justify the Danish action in the same forum.
It would have been difficult to have pushed legislation through parliament today because the government's majority would have disappeared with the absence of a Social-Democrat, Mogens Camre.
Today Mr. Camre was being questioned by the police at the Copenhagen airport. He was (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Protectionism Signs Growing

PARIS, Oct. 19 (UPI).—Signs of spreading protectionism, with its implied threat of a trade war, appeared in Europe today as international experts met here and failed to resolve the problem of balance of payments adjustments.
The international meeting was unable to agree on the size of the turnaround required to aid the U.S. balance of payments deficit. They said the problem was a political one that must be solved at ministerial level.
In Bonn, West German Economics Minister Karl Schiller appealed to Europe to help the United States out of its deficit. But at the same time a leader of the French aerospace industry revealed that France is seeking tariff barriers against U.S. aircraft and aerospace products in retaliation for the American import surcharge.

U.S. Agency Asks for Power To Bar Europe's Low Fares

By Robert Lindsey
WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (NYT).—The Nixon administration today strongly opposed a request by the Civil Aeronautics Board for new congressional authority to permit the agency to "prescribe" air fares on international routes.
At the same time, the administration agreed with the CAB that it needed more legal muscle in dealing with international fares, and urged that the board be empowered to reject or suspend rates by foreign airlines.
Secor D. Browne, the CAB chairman, told the Aviation Subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee that his agency wanted standby authority to set international fares if those proposed by American or foreign lines were either too high or too low. If the CAB was given such authority, it could deny operating rights in the United States to airlines that charged different rates.
The CAB has intermittently sought power to regulate international rates.
Luthansa, the German airline, has vetoed a fares agreement accepted by other members of the International Air Transport Association, which has negotiated most international fares since 1945. The veto means that after Feb. 1 each airline will be able to set its own fares, a situation Mr. Browne said today could lead to "disastrous" cut-throat competition.

Munich Opens Its New Subway

MUNICH, Oct. 19 (AP).—Munich, site of the 1972 Olympic Summer Games, today became the 38th city in the world to have a subway.
West German Transportation Minister Georg Leber presided at a ceremony opening a 10.5-kilometer stretch of the subway leading from the downtown area to the suburb of Freimann. The section cost over 500 million marks ($150 million) and took six and a half years to complete.
Next May 28, an additional four-kilometer subway section connecting downtown Munich with the Olympic site will be opened.

U.S. Ready to Make Concessions to Panama

By Benjamin Welles
WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (NYT).—The United States is preparing to cede to Panama substantial territory, commercial concessions and some legal jurisdiction in the 500-square-mile Panama Canal Zone, according to American and Latin American diplomats.
After 17 meetings since June 29, United States and Panamanian negotiators here are reported to be making steady progress toward a new canal treaty to replace the 1903 accord that gave the United States a lease on the Canal Zone "in perpetuity."
According to informed officials, the United States is eager to shed its "colonialist" image in Panama—and throughout Latin America—by making concessions on all but two key issues.
First is the right to operate and defend the strategic waterway, built by the United States for $387 million and opened to world traffic in 1914. Second, the United States, given congressional approval, will insist on its right either to improve the existing canal with a third set of locks at an estimated cost of $1.5 billion or to build a new sea-level canal across Panama for an estimated $3 billion. The latter would take 15 years to build and 60 years to amortize.
A presidential panel has recommended that either one course or the other be adopted before the year 2000.
In the background is a sense of rising expectation in Panama, spurred by anti-United States riots in 1966 and 1964. Four Americans and 23 Panamanians were killed in the 1964 riots. Panama broke off diplomatic relations with the United States in protest.
The Panamanian panel, according to well-informed Latin sources, is to leave the United States by Oct. 15 to inform Panama of its recommendations.
The new rate was announced by the government's Institute of Foreign Exchange, without explanation.
The institute has been trading in the dollar for some weeks at 69.07 pesetas, a figure already outside the fluctuation limit for parity set by the International Monetary Fund.
The institute announced the new exchange rate at the close of business today. It was not immediately clear what the government would now consider parity for exchanging the dollar.
The Bank of Spain declined comment. But the Spanish news agency Europa Press said the new rate amounted to a "practical revaluation," and when accumulated with changes since President Nixon announced his economic policy it equaled more than 2 percent.
The new rate was expected to catch thousands of American tourists by surprise tomorrow. The IMF fluctuation limit of 1 percent was 69.300 pesetas for a dollar. Spain revalued the peseta beyond an officially declared parity limit of 69.475 on Aug. 30. The dollar then dipped to 69.07 in early September.

Newsman's Trial

Expel First Secretary's Embassy in Prague
Oct. 19 (Reuters).—Rude Pravo last week to have been in contact with Mr. Vrajik were Edward Burgess, a former embassy counselor who left Prague two years ago, and Mark Garrison, former first secretary, who left here a year ago.
However, the U.S. Embassy in Prague said after the report appeared that the embassy had received no formal complaint on the activities of American staff members from the Czechoslovak authorities.
News Conferences
The article also named in the same context a number of American foreign correspondents who have worked in Prague, especially during the reformist spring of 1968, which ended with the Soviet-led invasion of the country.
Rude Pravo said Mr. Vrajik—who wrote under a pen name—had been able to make good use of news conferences and discussions at ministries and had handed on important political and military information to officials of Western embassies.

Seeking a New Policy

Sato Tells Diet He Intends To Press for Peking Ties
By Richard Halloran
The importance of formal government-to-government contacts on every possible occasion.
Foreign Minister Takao Fukuda and Finance Minister Mikio Miota also made policy speeches, which reinforced Mr. Sato's position.
Informal Contacts
Until three months ago, Japan's China policy consisted primarily of promoting trade and making pragmatic political decisions as they came up. But shortly after President Nixon's announcement July 15 that he planned to visit Peking, Japan quietly sent to Peking a diplomat who had "retired" from the Foreign Service. He went as a member of Japan's trade mission to China, and the Chinese Foreign Office did the same. Thus Tokyo and Peking had direct, if informal, communications.
Mr. Sato said today that his government "firmly and fundamentally believes that there is just one China," and he expressed hope that the fate of Taiwan will be settled "through negotiations between the parties concerned."
He defended his government's policy of favoring the admission of Peking to the United Nations and opposing the expulsion of Taiwan.
Mr. Sato has made known that he would like very much to visit China and has quietly sent word to Mr. Nixon asking him to bring up the question with Premier (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

Kissinger Is Due In Peking Today

PEKING, Oct. 19 (Reuters).—Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's special envoy, arrives tomorrow on a second discreet mission to Peking to pave the way for the American President's own visit next year.
There was nothing in Peking tonight to indicate the important train of political events which will follow Mr. Kissinger's visit. The fact that Mr. Kissinger is arriving tomorrow has not been mentioned by the official press or radio.
The premier said that it is "imperative" for Japan to establish a new set of principles to govern its relations with mainland China and to obtain a "comprehensive consensus" of support from the Japanese people.
"I am firmly determined to take every possible opportunity to reach agreements with them [the Chinese] on various items such as communications, meteorology, civil aviation, fisheries, and so forth," Mr. Sato said.
"At the same time, I shall do my best to call to their attention

U.S. Confident of Victory

UN Move to Expel Taiwan Irresponsible, Japan Says
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 19 (UPI).—Japan said today that the move to expel Nationalist China from the United Nations on a simple majority vote is irresponsible because it ignores the real situation in the Far East.
Former Japanese Foreign Minister Kijichi Aichi spoke to the General Assembly on the second day of the China debate as pro-Peking and pro-Taiwan forces scrambled for a dozen undecided votes.
Nationalist Chinese diplomats expressed confidence the UN seat would be saved by a margin of five or six votes. Sources close to the U.S. State Department talked in terms of a three or four-vote victory margin.
U.S. More Confident
[American delegation spokesman Nicholas King said the United States was more confident than ever before in the outcome of the crucial debate and believed the "psychological climate" had already improved to its advantage. "We are confident that we will succeed," he said.]
Mr. Aichi pointed out that most countries in Asia and the Pacific area support the U.S. resolutions calling for the seating of mainland China in both the General Assembly and the Security Council while requiring a two-thirds vote for approval of Peking's demand for the expulsion of Taiwan.
The Albanian resolution containing Peking's demand, Mr. Aichi said, is "unreasonable and peremptory."
"Quite frankly, to adopt the Albanian resolution by a simple majority would be, in our considered view, an irresponsible attitude not befitting the high prestige and noble obligations of our world organization," said Mr. Aichi.
Although 10 of the first 15 speakers in the historic debate voiced support for Peking, U.S. and Nationalist leaders continued to reflect optimism.

Ballistics Tests By L.A. Upheld in Kennedy Slaying

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 19 (NYT).—Los Angeles County District Attorney Joseph P. Busch has cleared a police ballistics expert of charges that he improperly conducted ballistics tests in connection with the assassination of Robert F. Kennedy.

The vindication of Dewayne Wolter, of the Los Angeles police department, weakened speculation that a second gun was involved in the 1968 shooting.

Mr. Busch, at the conclusion of a four-month independent investigation, agreed, however, with a county grand jury that has accused County Clerk William G. Sharp of "tax handling" of the evidence against the convicted slayer, Sirhan B. Sirhan.

Charges that Mr. Wolter testified the wrong gun and other evidence improperly performed the ballistics tests were brought May 28 by Barbara Warner Blehr, a lawyer. Mrs. Blehr made the charges in a letter to the City Civil Service Commission, urging that Mr. Wolter not be promoted as director of the police department's criminal laboratory.

The Swiss obsession with punctuality

It finally produced the Eterna Sonic
At Eterna we've been obsessed with punctuality for over 100 years.
Finally, we decided that we should not merely concentrate our efforts on improving the conventional watch.
So we turned to electronics.
The electronic watch uses an incredibly accurate tuning fork mechanism. Which you don't need to wind up. And which runs instead of ticks.
Before we came along it was the most accurate wristwatch you could buy.
But we went even further.
We added what we call a "flexion oscillator," which makes sure the tuning fork vibrates with exactly the same frequency, no matter its position on your wrist. Which makes it that much more accurate.
Our Eterna Sonic will keep the same accurate time day in day out; less than 2 seconds variance a day.

No Change Seen in Celibacy Issue

Synod Majority Would Bar Married Priest

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 19 (UPI).—Roman Catholic churchmen today recommended by a large majority the barring of married men from becoming priests.

Shortly after 12 working committees handed in their recommendations on practical aspects of the priesthood, the delegates began work on justice in the world, the synod's second and last theme.

The committee votes were not a final decision, but the action of the prelates appeared to rule out the possibility that married men could become priests in the near future.

Pope Paul VI has the authority to override the recommendation, but Vatican sources noted he is one of the strongest defenders of the 12th-century church law on celibacy.

Six of 12 committees, established according to major languages of the synod, said they voted against admitting married men under any circumstances. Vatican sources said two other committees that did not report today also were overwhelmingly opposed to married priests.

One Group Is Split

Of the four other committees, one was split on the issue, two expressed no opinion and one called for more study of the possibility that married men might become priests one day.

Voting against married men entering the priesthood were all three English-language groups, two of them led by John Cardinal Dearden of Detroit and John Cardinal Carberry of St. Louis, two Spanish groups and a French group.

The Dearden committee and one headed by Pakistani Bishop Joseph Cardinal Karim of Karachi voted to strike out the phrase "at the present time" because prelates felt this would imply the issue was unresolved.

It was still probable that the question of admitting some married men to the priesthood would come before all 210 synod delegates meeting in the general assembly. But the results of the committee recommendations made approval seem highly unlikely.

The Pope said 20 months ago that he would consider the ordination of elderly married men under certain circumstances, meaning mostly in areas desperately short of priests.

The committees had been meeting since last Thursday to consider the celibacy issue and other practical problems of the priesthood, using as the basis for their deliberations a report by Spain's Vincente Cardinal Enrique y Tarancon.

He had asked the committees to study three options—that ordination of married men was "neither necessary nor convenient" at the present time, that married men could become priests in exceptional cases by direct decision of the Pope, and that individual national bishops' conferences decide, with the Pope's approval, to ordain some men to meet local needs.

Only a handful of bishops voted for the last option. Most voted for the first.

Every committee came out unanimously in favor of maintaining celibacy as the normal rule for the Roman Catholic Church, spokesman said.

This meant there was no possibility the church would allow existing priests to marry or that it would adopt the rule used in the Eastern Rite Catholic churches, where priests are allowed to marry before their ordination but not after.

Stand on War Urged
VATICAN CITY, Oct. 19 (UPI).—Two American priests brought a petition to the synod from Salon today, asking Roman Catholic Church firm stand against the Vietnam war.

But they said they hope of being allowed to synod delegates or Pope.

The Rev. Harry Burrows, of the University of Minnesota, and the Rev. of Winona, Minn., came from Saigon, where they had themselves to the U.S. Embassy on Oct. 17 to protest the war.

Following Clashes of Workers and Police

4,000 Ousted From Spanish Car Factory

BARCELONA, Oct. 19 (Reuters).—Armed police tonight dislodged more than 4,000 striking car workers from the giant Seat factory here only a few hours after the plant had reopened following violent clashes yesterday.

The 4,000 refused to work when it became known that the company had suspended the men on the morning shift without pay for two days as a punishment for their strike action yesterday.

Police were called in when the men refused either to resume work or to leave the premises, and the plant was cleared without incident, informed sources said.

The factory was to remain open to enable men on the overnight shift to report for duty if they wished, the sources said.

The workers walked out yesterday in solidarity with 20 men dismissed last June for their part in an illegal strike.

The company said tonight that most of these men had already accepted compensation payments and there was no question of their being taken back.

After yesterday's strike at least five policemen and three factory guards and an undisclosed number of workers were injured in clashes yesterday outside the factory.

Thousands of shouting workers and students massed outside the shuttered factory earlier today to demonstrate their solidarity with the striking employees.

More than 30 strikers were arrested in the fighting yesterday.

Traffic was halted today for six minutes outside the Seat factory, which was temporarily locked out of the government, but police in patrol cars quickly dispersed the demonstrators without serious incident. Seat stands for Sociedad Española de Automóviles de Turismo.

A smaller group of students, most of them apparently from Barcelona University's college of economics, gathered in the central Plaza de Cataluña and nearby streets in a similar demonstration. They were dispersed within minutes.

There were isolated stoppages in various other factories throughout the city today, all in sympathy with the Seat men, but there were no reports of further violence.

There was no confirmation today of reports that a worker was wounded yesterday when police opened fire during the worst of the confrontations, but a statement by the civil government said one Seat security guard was badly injured and two others slightly hurt in violence inside the plant.

Outsiders Blamed

A Seat announcement and an accompanying statement by the government blamed yesterday's trouble on "outsiders" who tried to enter the factory without authorization and who "ridiculed the guards and attacked some of them."

According to informed sources here, the "outsiders" were about 20 former Seat employees—dismissed last June for taking part in an illegal strike—who tried to report for work yesterday.

It was in support of their reinstatement that the factory's 6,000 workers walked out.

At Oviedo, in northern Spain, a prolonged strike by coal miners of the state-owned Hunosa company continued today despite an open letter from management

Memphis Police Relieve 23 in Killing of Negro

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 19 (UPI).—Twenty-three policemen, including two inspectors, a captain and two lieutenants, were relieved of duty last night pending a state investigation into the beating to death of a Negro youth whom the police had listed as a traffic victim.

"I want to clear the air and make these officers available to the [state] attorney general in conducting his investigation," said Police Chief Henry Law.

He emphasized that the policemen had been "only relieved" from duty, permitting them to still draw their pay, and not suspended, which he described as a stronger measure.

State Attorney General Phil Canale promised black leaders Sunday to investigate the death Friday of Elton Hayes, 17, who the police said had died of injuries received in the "crash" of a truck that was fleeing patrolmen.

"The preliminary autopsy report indicates that there's probable homicide involved, not growing out of the automobile accident," Mr. Canale said. The report said Mr. Hayes died as a result of "a blow which crushed his skull."

New Premis Iceland Like But Wants

REYKJAVIK, Oct. 19 (UPI).—Iceland's new prime minister, Jón Johannesson, said he requested departure from NATO and the United States.

The 54-year-old politician said he would like to see the island nation become a free country, but he would prefer that it remain a NATO member.

The new leftist government, which took power in a referendum last June, said it would like to see the island nation become a free country, but he would prefer that it remain a NATO member.

The leader of the former Frontist party, Jón Magnússon, said the government was in the direction of a left-wing party—one that makes up for lost time by adopting a foreign policy.

Solzhenitsyn Insists He Get Nobel in Public in Moscow

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 19 (AP).—A letter by last year's Nobel Prize-winner in literature, Soviet writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn, published here today, asks: "Is the Nobel Prize actually a stolen property which must be handed over behind closed doors and without any witnesses?"

Mr. Solzhenitsyn also said: "Why was he [Palme] beforehand convinced that the lecture was to be a political speech? What about it being a purely literary lecture?"

The 53-year-old writer said in his letter that he is deeply touched by the Swedish Academy's offer to send representatives in Moscow for the prize ceremony.

Mrs. Gandhi Rules Out Talks With Yahya to Ease Tension

NEW DELHI, Oct. 19 (Reuters).—Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today ruled out talks with President Mohammed Yahya Khan, of Pakistan, to ease the mounting tension between the two countries.

The trouble stemmed from Pakistani actions in East Pakistan and was not an Indo-Pakistan problem, she told a news conference.

"What is there to discuss between India and Pakistan?" she asked.

Matters had to be settled between the military and the elected leaders of Bangla Desh, as she called East Pakistan. To improve what she termed a grave situation, there had to be an end to "provocation" by the Pakistani Army in Bangla Desh and the creation of conditions in which the nine million East Pakistani refugees in India could return home.

Mrs. Gandhi spoke of the massing of Pakistani troops on India's borders and "threatening noises" made by Pakistan. But, she said, her planned tour to Western Europe and the United States, due to begin Sunday, "stands as of now."

"We have been doing and will continue to do everything possible to avoid an armed conflict," Mrs. Gandhi said.

But India had to reinforce its defenses in the face of Pakistani threats, she said. She also reaffirmed that the refugees would not be allowed to settle permanently in India.

President Yahya's reported offer of mutual troop withdrawal from the borders had to be viewed against other strong anti-Indian moves, Mrs. Gandhi said in reply to a newsman's questions. There is a saying, she said, "How can you shake hands with a clenched fist?"

Troops of both countries, meanwhile, maintained their positions separated by only a few hundred yards in certain areas.

Both sides appeared to have broken ground rules which stipulate that regular troops should stay five miles from the border. The border posts were still manned by para-military.

Italian Bill Asks Legal Abortions

ROME, Oct. 19 (UPI).—A Socialist member of parliament introduced a bill Saturday to legalize abortion in Italy.

Deputy Antonio Brizzi said his bill would permit abortions in cases where expectant mothers were the victims of rape or incest and where the physical or mental health of mother or child was threatened.

It also would allow abortions, Mr. Brizzi said, in cases where a woman had five children and was unable to care for more.

Three senators have proposed an abortion law, but no action has been taken on their bill.

Air Force Warning

RAWALPINDI, Oct. 19 (AP).—The commander of the Pakistani Air Force today threatened to take "appropriate action" if Indians "continue to violate Pakistan's airspace."

An air force spokesman said Air Marshal A. Rahim Khan made the statement in a message to the head of the Indian Air Force.

Marshal Rahim charged that an Indian Air Force Canberra crossed into West Pakistani territory at Bahawalpur early Saturday. The area is near the Rajeshan desert, where both sides have stepped up troop concentrations.

London Woman Found Strangled On Greek Shore

ATHENS, Oct. 19 (UPI).—Greek police said today that Ann Dorothy Chapman, 25, a London radio reporter found dead yesterday, by a small collector, was strangled by hand and then dumped onto an empty seashore near Athens.

Miss Chapman disappeared from her hotel, at the resort of Kavouri, 16 miles from Athens last Friday night shortly after setting out for a dinner engagement in the capital.

An autopsy performed this morning showed that Miss Chapman had been strangled sometime Friday night. The coroner said contusions on the back of her skull and various parts of the body indicated that a struggle had taken place before her death.

He said the crime was not committed where the body had been found, and that Miss Chapman's hands and feet had been tied with wire after her death. He said Miss Chapman had not been raped.

Guards Tear-Gas Joliet Prisoners

JOLIET, Ill., Oct. 19 (AP).—Guards using tear gas moved against a group of troublesome inmates at Joliet prison today and transferred them to special cells, prison officials said. The prisoners had been locked in their cells since Saturday for refusing to surrender makeshift weapons.

Authorities said some of the 24 inmates who were moved suffered tear-gas inhalation but there were no serious injuries. They said 50 guards went into the area before dawn, and the tear gas was employed after the inmates refused to leave the cell block area voluntarily.

The officials said the 24 inmates, who had been assigned to a special program unit for "difficult prisoners," were transferred to special cells stripped of beds, light bulbs or anything that could be used as a weapon.

Whole Business Area Of Va. Village Burns

ONLEY, Va., Oct. 19 (UPI).—The entire business district of this tiny Eastern Shore fishing and farming village was destroyed by fire early today, apparently the work of an arsonist, according to Accomack County fire and Virginia State police officials.

The blaze started at the hardware store, spread to four neighboring stores, then jumped across an unnamed street—the only one in town—to the other three shops comprising the business district. The 15 residents will henceforth have to drive to Onancock, the county seat, for supplies.

The Great Debate Begins

Although the General Assembly debate on the admission of the People's Republic of China (with more than 600 millions under its sway) was formulated to repair a great breach in the intended universality of the United Nations, it has already amply demonstrated the diversity of the world organization.

There was Albania—whose fewer than two million stalwart souls represent an outstanding example of stubborn nationalism in world history, and very little else—urging the entry of Peking by denouncing the two super-powers, the United States and the Soviet Union.

And to demonstrate the force of this "one state, one vote" principle in the UN (of course, the Soviet Union has three votes) there was a manhunt through the corridors along the East River to find an elusive and possibly apocryphal representative of the Maldivian Republic. The Maldives Islands' chief economic resource is dried fish, and their population is about 100,000; they withdrew from active participation in the UN because of the expense. But they still have official membership and a potential vote equal to that of the United States.

At issue was not only the admission of mainland China, but the expulsion of Taiwan—an effective, economically viable state of about six or seven times the population of Albania. But before this could be decided it will also be necessary to determine whether the question is "important," thus requiring a two-thirds vote. Few delegates would dispute Ambassador Bush's statement that for "22 years the question of representation of the great nation of China has been a major international issue—a troublesome and intractable one." Yet many will vote that it is not an important question because it suits their national policies to do so.

It is easy to say that all this is a travesty of good sense and of democratic procedure, an outstanding illustration of the inability of the UN to cope with the problems of this complex world. This is especially plausible when it is considered that a war is going on in Indochina, quite outside the sphere of UN concern; another war seems imminent in the Indian subcontinent under the same UN disinterest; a third is temporarily quiescent in the Middle East with only minimal UN action.

Nevertheless, consider how something like the China question would have been discussed under the old diplomacy. It is doubtful whether China would have had any say at all—or at best would have been permitted token representation. Albania might have haunted the diplomats' hotels, seeking to get an unofficial word in edgewise; no one would have cared in the least about the Maldives. And the "major powers" would have settled the matter to their own satisfaction, side-stepping reality quite as much as the General Assembly does now, and storing up fuel for the next major war.

The UN has not lived up to the expectations of a quarter-century ago. It stands in need of extensive overhauling if it is to function as its Charter intends. But for all its anomalies, it is a more humane and civilized approach to the world affairs than the old diplomacy—or the old League of Nations. It must be looked at coldly, and without illusions—for it can excite neither great warmth nor many illusions. But it is a step forward; it does hold out hope.

Water on the Moon?

The most surprising information yet obtained about the moon has been announced by two Rice University scientists, who believe they have detected water on its surface in the form of geysers emerging from cracks caused by moonquakes. So vital are the implications of this report that confirmation (or refutation) or its conclusions is probably now the most important single item on the agenda of lunar science.

Until Drs. John W. Freeman Jr. and H. Kent Hills announced their finding, it had always been assumed that the moon was entirely without water. There was no evidence of water erosion on the rocks brought back by the Apollo astronauts, or any other clue to suggest the presence of lunar H₂O. But now the prospect arises that there may be water under the moon's surface, which could conceivably be tapped by men for their own needs. Lack of water has been one of the principal reasons why permanent manned settlements on the moon have seemed impracticable. With abundant water available, it is conceivable that there could be lunar agriculture over enclosed areas properly protected both against the low gravity of the moon and the terrible cold of the lunar night.

The possibility that this water vapor that has now been detected on the moon was originally brought there by Apollo astronauts cannot yet be dismissed. Nevertheless, even before Drs. Freeman and Hills announced their findings it was becoming increasingly clear that the moon is a much more complex body than had been supposed. We are still in the very infancy of the era of moon exploration, and of its development for the benefit of the human race.

International Opinion

Sadat's Moscow Message

Mr. Sadat brings back from Moscow a polite but clear message: Everything that is good for Egypt is not necessarily good for the U.S.S.R. and the aid which the latter grants the former is subject to imperative requirements going far beyond the framework of the Egyptian-Israeli conflict. The Egyptian president may have some reason to regret today that John Foster Dulles refused to finance the Aswan Dam 20 years ago. The principal motive for the Kremlin's reticence, of course, is the wave of anti-Communism that followed the Khartoum coup, in Libya, Egypt and Sudan. The other reason is that Moscow can in no case underwrite Mr. Sadat's conclusion that only military force will break the stubbornness of Israel.

The intolerance of the Arab countries toward Marxism is enough to convince the Soviets they will have to renounce any penetration into the Mediterranean from the moment the conflict is settled, by force or otherwise. Their position is diametrically opposite that of the Americans, who, on the contrary, have an audience to rebuild in the Arab world and need peace to do so.

Arms for Northern Ireland

The Russian and Eastern European propaganda agencies have chosen to interpret the disorders in Northern Ireland through the standard categories of imperialist repression and colonial revolt. Their accounts have been tendentious, lurid and hostile in tone to the governments of Northern Ireland and of the United Kingdom.

That need cause no surprise. Furnishing weapons is a very different matter. There is armed insurrection in Northern Ireland. The state is under attack. The attack comes from quarters which have been condemned, their methods and their organizations, by the elected, civic and clerical representatives of the minority in whose interests they purport to operate. For a government, the Czech government, to permit the sale of arms to one of the organizations waging that attack—if that proves to be what has happened—would be in the language of diplomacy an unfriendly act toward the government of the United Kingdom.

Almost a Miracle

It seems almost a miracle that so far major hostilities and even significant skirmishes have been avoided between India and Pakistan as a result of the turmoil in East Bengal during the past seven months. The strain might well have been too much for good neighbors, let alone for two countries whose inveterate enmity is still compounded by rival religious fanaticism.

It is tempting fortune to assume that war by accident or design can be staved off indefinitely. Nor is it likely, if it came, that it could be localized in one of the world's most crucial strategic areas, where Russia and China confront each other—Russia linked to India by a brand new defense treaty that ended Indian non-alignment, and China equally squarely behind Pakistan in word and deed.

In 1966, Mr. Kosygin ended that Indo-Pakistani war, and vastly boosted Russian prestige, by his mediation at Tashkent. This time Russia, backed by immensely expanded military power, seemed at first inclined to exploit the situation. She has, however, been brought up sharply by her Arab friends, who support Pakistan. Attempts to placate them led to difficulties with India. Such are the problems of empire.

This is a case where neither side, nor their backers, has anything to gain by war. All must show the greatest restraint, and President Yahya, instead of blaming India for the mess in East Pakistan, should clear it up speedily and thus remove the cause of the tension.

The Shape of Things to Come

By C. L. Sulzberger

PARIS—At home the United States has frozen wages and prices but abroad there is an opposite trend. President Nixon is deliberately unfreezing our overseas position. Both the American dollar and American diplomacy are afloat.

For many months the President has obviously been planning the dramatic moves and journeys in which he is now involved. Last March 13 he told me: "We must continue our Soviet negotiations and open the door to cooperation in China. And in this way there will be a chance of building a world that is relatively peaceful." He added that the Vietnam war was ending and would not be a political issue next year. "In fact, I seriously doubt that we will ever have another war."

The business of creating a new relationship with nations long regarded as our principal adversaries does not automatically presuppose cooling off toward our principal friends. But whether the President wishes it or not, there is bound to be some change.

U.S. Diplomatic Stress

The emphasis of U.S. diplomatic concern has been devoted for years to relations with Britain, Western Europe, Canada, Japan and, to a surprising degree, India. Israel has also been a primary source of attention and we still hope to de-fuse the explosive Middle East situation.

Now allied relations are starting to show signs of change, even before Nixon takes off on his sensational tour of Communist superpower capitals. There has been a sag in traditional U.S.-Canadian friendship. Likewise, while Washington and London remain loyal chums, the British drive toward Europe's Common Market has inevitably loosened ties to the U.S.A. A writer in the London Observer commented this week:

"As Britain moves closer to Europe, her relations with both the Soviet Union and the United States seem to be near their lowest point in years... In the trade conflict which threatens to embitter relations between the European Common Market countries and the United States, Britain is inevitably siding with the Europeans. Over China there is also a parting of the ways."

As for Japan—the souring of relations has been distressing. The one-two punch administered by Nixon through failure to give advance notice of his Peking trip after all these years of warning the Japanese to take it easy on China and then by chopping Japanese export markets came at a moment of maximum inconvenience.

Emperor Hirohito was about to take off on his first imperial tour which, apart from an Alaskan airport, where Nixon paid his respects, eluded the United States. But he attracted a shower of boos from our European allies.

One English paper found Hirohito's presence "squalid." Another referred to "a sense of nausea." Dutchmen booed and Prince Bernhard refused to attend the lunch which his wife, Queen Juliana, gave the imperial couple. The Japanese can't blame us for such bad manners but they lump America together with its allies as "the West" and some presidential limousines were fitted with bullet-proof glass and was almost unique. The only other car in Chicago at that time so equipped was also parked on Michigan Avenue, only about four miles south. It was a Lincoln and belonged to a fellow named Al Capone, who lived in the nearby Lexington Hotel.

U.S. friendship with Western Europe has somehow seemed a bit more sour since the currency crisis became dramatic. Furthermore, American influence in India has virtually vanished. India is no longer regarded by Washington as a laboratory experiment where we can prove that democracy works with both freedom and stability in a massive country—thus offsetting the Chinese example to developing lands.

We never suited our Indian policy to our Indian dream, poisoning the former by our parallel Pakistan policy. Today Washington regards one-neutralist India as virtually a Soviet satellite.

Democrats in a Fluid Race Missing the Boat?

By David S. Broder

WASHINGTON—George McGovern's managers think the prize is missing the boat on his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination. Political reporters, they say, are underestimating Sen. McGovern's badly as they underestimate Eugene J. McCarthy's chances against Lyndon Johnson four years ago. They cite the accomplishments in the organization area that they say make McGovern "a very viable candidate," not the complete longshot he is usually called. They claim that 2,000 volunteers have enlisted to work for him in the primaries in New Hampshire and Wisconsin, with county-level organizations functioning in two-thirds of the counties in the latter state a full seven months ahead of the primary.

McGovern's Oregon chairman says he has 500 workers in the tri-county Portland area alone, who will conduct a door-to-door canvass for the senator next month to bring out more supporters. Even if these claims are slightly exaggerated, there is little doubt that McGovern's field organization in the primary states rivals or exceeds that of anyone else in the race. But other, more important questions remain to be answered. McGovern may have organized his faction of the party, but it is not clear that the McGovern faction has expanded to the point that it is a potential majority.

Nixon is searching for peace on a planetary scale. This is bound to readjust international relationships, ultimately to end the Indochina war and also to reduce our military contribution to NATO. The Economist calls it "a fine piece of showmanship" and adds: "Mr. Nixon has surprised and delighted American public opinion and reminded the world that conservatives are often very good at pursuing flexible foreign policies."

But, while freeing his own hands in the bargaining game that is about to start, the President cannot help but free the hands of certain of our allies. Japan, for example, is being assiduously wooed by Moscow to help develop Siberia. The old kaleidoscopic patterns are changing with dazzling speed and nobody can foresee what the new scheme of things will be, even a few years hence.

But McGovern is not the only one whose chances are jeopardized by the large field. Muskie has Hubert H. Humphrey looking over his shoulder in his bid for middle-road support. In turn, Humphrey's prospective backing from organized labor and other "regular" party elements is weakened by the candidacy of Henry (Scoop) Jackson, who is picking up significant support from the old-guard Democratic forces. And looming over all of them is Edward M. Kennedy, whose hold on the imagination of Democratic politicians seems undiminished.

McGovern's Oregon chairman says he has 500 workers in the tri-county Portland area alone, who will conduct a door-to-door canvass for the senator next month to bring out more supporters. Even if these claims are slightly exaggerated, there is little doubt that McGovern's field organization in the primary states rivals or exceeds that of anyone else in the race. But other, more important questions remain to be answered. McGovern may have organized his faction of the party, but it is not clear that the McGovern faction has expanded to the point that it is a potential majority.

To Counter Muskie

The original goal of the McGovern forces for 1971 was to establish him as the chief challenger to Edmund S. Muskie. That has not happened; indeed, McGovern has not yet managed to monopolize the support of the Democratic left. Harold Hughes and Birch Bayh have dropped out of the race, but Fred Harris is poaching on McGovern's territory and—far more serious—John Lindsay appears to be moving steadily toward an open candidacy.

Polks taken in widely scattered states from New England to the West Coast are turning up surprisingly high approval ratings coming "disenthralled" with the Kennedy myth. In books and critical journals and newspaper interviews, the downgrading of Kennedy proceeds. This indictment deserves examination.

Kennedy, it is said, set the pattern of the kind of foreign policy carried out by Lyndon B. Johnson with all its disastrous divisive consequences here at home. Furthermore, it was the Kennedy appointees—Rusk, McNamara, the Bundy's—who carried out that foreign policy. More broadly speaking, Kennedy's soaring rhetoric and ambitious policies intensified the globalism, the sense of America as the world's policeman and social worker, which is so out of fashion today.

A passage is often cited from Kennedy's inaugural address: "Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe to assure the survival and the success of liberty."

But who is to say that John Kennedy would have deemed a major land war in South Vietnam necessary "to assure the survival of liberty"? Lyndon Johnson made that decision in 1965 some 15 months after Kennedy was in his grave.

Nobody forced Johnson to make that decision. He entered office convinced that Vietnam was worth fighting for and he acted on his own convictions. It is absurd to picture him in foreign affairs as the ignorant puppet of his dead predecessor's policies. When it suited him, Johnson changed them. Immediately upon taking office, for example, he placed Thomas Mann in charge of both the Alliance for Progress program and of all Latin American affairs and rapidly changed the tone and direction of Kennedy policies in the hemisphere.

But what about Rusk, McNamara, the Bundy's? In assuming that Kennedy would have followed their Vietnam advice as Johnson did, critics conveniently forget that at his death Kennedy was disenchanted with Rusk, whom he planned to replace after the 1964 election. More important, they ignored the departure of the two men who were Kennedy's most trusted counselors for foreign as well as domestic affairs—Robert Kennedy and Theodore Sorensen.

Kennedy had planned to visit Japan and Russia in the spring of 1964. He had major initiatives in foreign policy in mind for second term. Precisely because he was a globalist, he probably not have become committed in one small corner of Southeast Asia. What Kennedy would have done in Vietnam if he had had no man can say. What can be said, however, is that if he intervened massively and for the war going badly, he would have dug his heels into wet concrete and stood fast while party and his country blew around him. Kennedy was not too sensitive to the current opinion to have stayed in office so long.

The only time Kennedy's force was at the Bay of Tonkin when the raid miscarried, chose the embarrassment of withdrawal rather than try to correct his mistake with air strikes Marine Corps reinforcements. Throughout his administration, whether he was dealing with Congress or Khrushchev, with Southern racist governors or steel-company executives, Kennedy followed a consistent pattern of trying narrow differences to conciliate rather than confront, to face-saving compromises. When he was alive, liberal critics who became more aggressive enough in fighting adversaries in Congress, who criticized him because he was aggressive enough in fighting adversaries in Congress, who criticized him for selling out to Russia, for not bombing the Russian missile bases in Cuba for making an unelectable settlement in Laos in 1962, taking too big a risk in signing the nuclear-test-ban treaty, recognized him for what he was—a peacemaker.

Kennedy was an intellectual, gifted man and the most skillful politician of his day. He had his weaknesses and made mistakes, but when death cut off, he was on his way toward becoming a great man and a great President. The crowds who followed their way to his grave site are not mistaken in their admiration. They are wiser than his last-day critics and their judgments will outlast today's disparagement.

Paris Theater

Bitter, Black Humor As the Odéon Reopens

By Thomas Quinn Curtis

PARIS, Oct. 19 (UPI)—The Odéon Theater reopened this week with Jean-Claude Grumberg's "Amorphe d'Ottenburg," putting into practice Minister of Culture Jacques Duhamel's plan to make the venerable Left Bank theater a laboratory for "creation and research."

Once the second House of Molière and more recently under the direction of Jean-Louis Barrault, it will now be consecrated exclusively to new plays, native and foreign, and the revivals of contemporary works such as the Jules Romains-Stefan Zweig version of Jansons "Volpone" later in the season. The Odéon will not maintain a permanent troupe; its board will be at the disposal of established companies: the Comédie-Française, the Jeune Théâtre National and various national dramatic centers.

Entertainment in New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (UPI)—This is how The New York Times critics rated new plays and movies:

MOVIES

"The French Connection," directed by William Friedkin, from a screenplay by Ernest Tidyman, "is a very good new kind of movie, and that in spite of its being composed of such ancient material as cops and crooks, with thrills and chases and lots of shoot 'em up," according to Roger Greenspan. "The French Connection" is a film of almost incredible suspense, and it in-tyranny is reborn from the very victory over tyranny, the seed of monstrous oppression spouting phoenix-like from the ashes of its defeat.

Remake Kingdom

The elderly, sit-by-the-fire monarch of a remote Gothic kingdom discovers with paternal pride his idiot son's drastic remedy for national economic recovery: the plowing under of all the unproductive—the old, infants and the hopelessly ill. This radical solution is perfected and placed into operation by the crown prince's Machiavellian tutor, a hunchbacked wizard of efficiency. In due course the king himself is liquidated and when his half-witted heir, a gibbering maniac brandishing a butcher knife, succeeds to the throne, there is a revolt and the land is liberated.

But in the sudden sunlight of post-ideological cocoon, radiant in shining armor, spares the evil efficiency expert, engaging him to aid in the country's reconstruction. This brand of adviser multiplies. The serfs are allotted double rations, but sweated as before and the shadow of the dark past falls across the scene. The concentration camp which has disappeared in the glow of liberation reappears in the background and the conclusion is that all will soon be as before—only worse. Grumberg's play with its murky castle, cunning courtiers and macabre machinations has the outward air of a revenge tragedy by one of the more ferocious Jacobites, but there is no trace of Webster or Tourneur in its writing. No haze of poetic metaphor illuminates its sombre scene. Childishly, there is an excess of fiendish shrieking and abominable howling and recourse to gross gutterisms to do duty as comedic relief. Loquacious in the extreme and without intermission, it is sometimes in danger of talking itself to death. Jean-Paul Roussillon's direction endows the "reweight" script with a theatrical fluency, a mastery feat. In addition he portrays the spineless, murderous freak of the title. Outstanding in the company he has recruited are André Reybaz as the sanctimonious cardinal of mummy aspect; Paul-Emile Delber as the misguided king; Rosy Varte as the nerve-wracked queen; Michel Aumont as the deformed counselor; Francis Huster—judged by many to be a new Gérard Philippe—as the beguiling troubadour; and Jean-Luc Boutte as the disappointing liberator. There is a striking set with a network of tangled barbed wire and a hovering vulture looking down from a globe on high, the work of Nicholas Poliak, an imaginative scenic artist who has also designed the costumes.

The New Deal for the Odéon has begun encouragingly with a superb staging of an arresting play by a gifted dramatist of the avant-garde. "Le Personnage Combattant" which Jean-Louis Barrault is reviving at the Recamier—is a lemming chop of very different cut. It is scarcely to be classed as a play at all, being a two-hour monologue in which a middle-aged author is seized with panic on a dire midnight in a dreary hotel room as he contemplates his past, present and future. He is occasionally interrupted in talking to himself by the appearance of an exasperated room service waiter (Michel Robin) who, like one possessed, joins him in hysterical despair.

Republican Night at Kennedy Cen

By Nan Robertson

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—Last night was Republican night at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

The third and last of its major halls—the Eisenhower Theater—opened with Chitra Bloom starring in Henrik Ibsen's "A Doll's House" on stage and President and Mrs. Nixon in the limelight out front.

The 1,100-seat theater is the only one of the big auditoriums under the Kennedy Center roof to bear a name. It came to life six weeks after the inaugural performances in the Opera House and Concert Hall, where the Kennedy family figured largely.

The Nixons shared their presidential box last night with the late Republican President's only son, John Eisenhower, former ambassador to Belgium, and his wife Barbara. Top staff members of the White House went to the black-tie premiere in force, along with Attorney General John N. Mitchell, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Housing and Urban Development Secretary George Romney and their wives.

Mrs. Maria Doud Eisenhower, the President's 74-year-old widow, did not attend. She was busy with previous commitments in Abilene, Kan., and elsewhere that revolved around celebration of her husband's birthday on Oct. 14.

There are two entrances of Eisenhower just outside the auditorium entrances of the grand foyer. One is a 16-inch bronze bust by Nixon Tregur, the only sculptor for whom he sat as President. The other is a copy of Eisenhower portrait by Willis of Houston. Order 10 days ago, it was in completion and brought to ington Sunday by the Mr. Willis's original hang. White House and was President's favorite, depicting himself.

There was some question why Roger L. Stevens, vice board chairman, in a 62-year-old classic by wegian playwright to a theater, rather than a lean play or an American.

Mr. Stevens replied the been unable to get his a new script of sufficient merit and so had chosen "House," which ran for 11 months on Broadway in so critical acclaim.

Bologna: A Pale Reflection of Mortade

By Waverley Root

THE name of Bologna has contributed a word to the English language. The type of sausage called bologna in the United States is so named because it is a pale reflection of Bologna's own special sausage, mortadella. A great deal of mediocre sausage is misleadingly referred to as mortadella, but as made in Bologna, mortadella is one of the great sausages of the world, which well deserved the accolade accorded it in 1961 by Ovidio Montalbani, a doctor and a gourmet, who called it "the noblest of all pork products." Many other experts, before and since, have agreed, and have praised other Bolognese sausages as well. Toward the end of the 18th century, Andrea Schott noted that Bologna was making "salami and sausages of which there is no equal in the whole country."

François Desjume in 1869 wrote in his "Nouveau Voyage d'Italie," "The salami of Bologna are renowned in the whole world." (Salami are sausages, salami is the general word for processed pork products, including sausages and also, for instance, ham). Toward the end of the 17th century an Englishman, R. Verrard, reported that "the Bolognese trade extensively in silk, velvet, linen, puppies, but above all in sausages, which are sent to all parts of Europe."

A dissenting opinion was expressed by Anatole France, who found mortadella unpleasant in taste and indigestible for the stomach; "but he had with him, during his visit to Bologna,"

This article is adapted from Waverley Root's "The Food of Italy," which will be published in New York in November by Atheneum. It has been selected as a special alternate choice of the Book-of-the-Month Club.

wrote Alessandro Cervellati, "his tyrannical friend, Madame Colfavert, which was certainly no help to the digestion."

Bashed Pork

Mortadella is made of finely bashed pork, kneaded well together, highly spiced, and packed tightly into sausage casings. The flesh is even and smooth. Sometimes the casing is the skin of a whole suckling pig into which the meat is stuffed with such artistry that no incision is visible—unless you pull up the foreleg and look under it, which is where you will find the hole through which it was inserted. This trick was known to the ancient Romans, and some authorities are of the opinion that mortadella was first made by them and has been manufactured continuously since, a theory which they buttress by another concerning the origin of its name. They point out that the Romans made a sausage called mortaria because it was flavored by myrtle berries, mortella in modern Italian—bence, mortadella. The only trouble with this theory is that it is not myrtle berries which provide the spiciness characteristic of mortadella, but whole peppercorns, and these are so much the indispensable mark of mortadella that its heavy peppering is recorded even in the 15th century, when pepper was so that it was used as an

Why investment in Pacific Harbour has such remarkable profit potential... because the Pacific Harbour development is geared to the world's major growth industry—tourism, in the world's fastest developing area—the South Pacific, and in the particular place where the tourist expansion will be greatest—Fiji.
because Fiji is already served by eight international airlines, visited by every cruise ship in the South Pacific, has made tourism its number one industry and now has an acute need for the type of tourist facilities and accommodation which Pacific Harbour will provide.
because there is a unique land tenure system in Fiji restricting availability of freehold land, Pacific Harbour occupies over 7,000 freehold acres in a prime position on the beautiful Coral Coast.
because the Pacific Harbour development is unusual in that it is pre-financed and funded by the Company's major shareholders—who include Slater, Walker Securities Ltd., P & O Lines Ltd., and Jardine Matheson & Co. Ltd.

A golden opportunity for the rather better-off

On classic Ibiza, beside the wine-land Mediterranean, a modern dream is now taking shape. Along the pleasantly wooded cape Punta Galera, naturally isolated and total private, 40 acres are becoming perhaps the most exclusive development between Gibraltar and Beirut.
There are just 79 sites, each of about 0.5 an acre and ranging in price from $12,000 to $220,000 according to position. There will be no more than 60 owners and probably as few as 40. 15 sites have already been sold to 7 very particular new idealists.
All roads are complete. Plentiful and pure water is on tap. Underground electricity and telephone wires are installed. Building can begin at moment plans are approved.
There is scenic glory and glorious wealth at Punta Galera. There is rock bathing and other pleasures of the sea. There will be a hotel and a modest club befitting the quiet dream. And all there will be "atmosphere," a sense of substantial, established community many desire a few can possess.
Obviously, there are many details omitted, much more colour required to complete the Punta Galera picture. Begin to build up your vision of this exclusive scene by writing for a very comprehensive brochure to the address below. Today?

Experts Call It Political Problem

U.S. 'Turnaround' Disputed

By Carl Gewirtz

Oct. 19 (AP)—International monetary experts... study on present trends and prospects gives a "treasuring outlook."

The study projects that the real growth (that is minus the effects of inflation) in the U.S. gross national product in the first six months of next year will be up 6.3 percent, at an annual rate, from the previous half.

This compares with an increase of 4.1 percent in the first six months of this year over the previous half and an estimated 4.8 percent improvement in the current half year. For all of 1971, the real GNP is expected to show a 3.1 percent gain over 1970, he said.

Schiller Asks Europe to Help U.S. Balance of Payments

By Joe Alex Morris

BONN, Oct. 19.—West German Economics Minister Karl Schiller appealed to his European partners today to join in a "fair and balanced offer" to help the United States out of its balance of payments crisis.

"We in Europe must seize upon the world's readiness to compromise," he told parliament. He was introducing a record-high "austerity" budget for 1972.

France Asks Six To Set Barrier On U.S. Aircraft

PARIS, Oct. 19 (Reuters).—France has asked its Common Market partners to set up a customs barrier against U.S. aircraft and aerospace products in retaliation for President Nixon's 10 percent import surcharge.

The budget breaks the 100 billion deutsche mark ($33 billion) level for the first time, and is 8.4 percent up from last year. But foreign attention centered upon Mr. Schiller's remarks on the world currency crisis.

International Capital Market To Get New Stock Offering

PARIS, Oct. 19 (AP)—A new dimension will be added to the international capital market early next month with the launching of the first international stock offering from an American firm.

Mr. Ziegler, who is also president of the Association of French Aerospace Industries said today. Mr. Henri Ziegler, newly appointed president of the association, told a press conference that his group could no longer accept any discrimination and called for protectionist measures.

Citibank Weighs Possibility Of a 'Floating' Prime Rate

By H. Erich Heinemann SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19 (AP)—Citibank is weighing the possibility of announcing a "floating" prime rate that would move automatically with interest rates in the open market.

Mr. Palmer said that, in his opinion, the "pep" for the new floating minimum charge on business loans should be the rate on 90-day commercial paper (unsecured corporate notes) that is sold through dealers to investors in the open market.

Kloekner-Werke Profit and Sales Decline 5 Percent

DUISBURG, West Germany, Oct. 19 (AP)—Kloekner-Werke net profit declined more than 5 percent in the year ended Sept. 30 from 69.3 million deutsche marks in fiscal 1970, Dieter Muenker, chief economist, said yesterday.

Revenue of the steel and heavy manufacturing company declined just about 5 percent from 2.24 billion DM the year before, Mr. Muenker said.

He said raw steel sales declined about 10 percent, but this was partly compensated by better performance in the steel finishing and processing division, which raised its share of Kloekner-Werke's business to 43 percent from 40 percent the year before.

Japan to Offer U.S. New Monetary Plan

TOKYO, Oct. 19 (AP)—Japan is expected to propose to the United States a three-point plan, including a 9.99 percent upward revaluation of the yen, in an effort to settle the international monetary crisis, the Asahi Shimbun reported today.

Quoting unidentified Japanese government leaders, the newspaper said the proposal will be made to U.S. Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally, who will visit Japan early next month after attending the Oct. 31 inauguration of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu in Saigon.

Rally Aids N.Y. Prices, But Dow Drops 4 Points

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—A lack of support sent New York Stock Exchange prices lower today for most of the session, but near the close a firming trend reversed much of the steep decline.

The Dow Jones industrial average was down more than 9 points at 1400 New York time, but support developed late in the day and the indicator closed at 868.43, down 4.01, its fifth successive decline.

NYSE Charged With Violating Anti-Trust Laws

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange was formally charged yesterday with violations of anti-trust laws in its refusal to allow some publicly-owned broker-dealers to become members.

In a suit filed here, Jeffries & Co., a Los Angeles-based subsidiary of Investors Diversified Services Inc., charged it has been illegally barred from regaining the Big Board membership it held from April, 1967, to July, 1969 when it was acquired by IDS.

IDS, a publicly-owned financial service organization, is the world's largest mutual fund operator. When it acquired Jeffries, NYSE rules prohibited public ownership of members. The rule was changed in March, 1970, but it still requires that members, or their parent companies, must receive more than half their gross income from broker-dealer operations.

Under NYSE definitions, Allegheny is the ultimate parent company and, since it does not derive half its income from brokerage operations, Jeffries is not qualified for membership. In its claim for damages, Jeffries claims that its exclusion from exchange membership has cost it $1 million a year. Since the anti-trust laws prevent damaged parties to collect treble damages, the firm is asking for $3 million for each year it is kept out of the exchange.

BRIDGE

By Alan Truscott

The bridge prestige of Great Britain may be on the rise again. The British have found a young team with the blend of talent and experience necessary to make a solid bid for the European title.

If South held the spade queen and the diamond king he could not be prevented from making nine tricks. Could he have the king-queen of diamonds? Hardly, for then his natural play would be to attack diamonds or spades, not clubs.

The nucleus will be four experts who have represented Great Britain successfully on many occasions: Jeremy Flint, Jonathan Canino, Tony Friday and Claude Rodrigue. The third pair is Rob Sheehan and Chris Dixon.

The only possibility that was both significant and realistic was that South held the two missing queens. So Sheehan led the diamond deuce. His analysis paid off when his partner produced the king and led a diamond back to give the defense five tricks.

Table with bidding information for East (D), West, South, and North.

The heart seven was the opening lead. South played low from dummy and captured the nine with the ten. The declarer could see eight tricks, four in spades and two each in hearts and clubs. Needing a ninth, he led a low club to dummy's ten at the second trick.

WUNNERFUL, WUNNERFUL! The Autobiography of Laurence Welk

By Laurence Welk with Bernice McGeohan. Illustrations by Hal. 294 pp. $7.95.

Reviewed by Elting E. Morison

LAWRENCE WELK and his Champagne Music Makers play familiar tunes on television on Saturday nights. During this hour there is some smoke that gets in your eyes, some of her laughter across a crowded room and some of the second wind supposed to blow as the days dwindle down. Even the corn is criticized.

These watching and listening are what Mr. Welk thinks of in genuine affection as "wonderful people." They are, as he often says, the hard-working, God-fearing, home-loving, law-abiding, beer-drinking "respectable folks."

On his way up he has a great deal about him. From the solved, more difficult present, stay there. And in so discovered a complicated can truth. The foundations of this hour, as Mr. Welk tells us in "Wunnerful, Wunnerful!" go all the way back to Strasburg, N.D. There he was born in 1903 into a German-speaking community in a bleak section of the middle border. As a boy who disliked farming and was "obsessed with music," he often played the accordion—polkas, schottisches, popular tunes—at the wedding feasts and name-day festivities that were the principal diversions of this cheerless region.

On the morning of his 21st birthday, with the accordion he had obtained by four years of indentured labor to his father, he left the family to whom he was devoted to seek his musical fortune. Supreme Court Will Hear Flood's Anti-Trust Suit

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The Supreme Court agreed today to hear Curt Flood's suit against professional baseball and to rule on the sport's immunity from anti-trust laws.

In the present structure of professional baseball—which courts have previously refused to disturb—a player is bound to one club until that club disposes of his contract in one way or another.

Chief Passes Beat Steelers; Dawson Stars

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 19 (AP).—Score-armed Len Dawson threw three touchdown passes and the Kansas City Chiefs erased a 9-0 deficit with four second-quarter touchdowns for a 38-16 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers last night in the American Football Conference game.

CARDINAL MISTAKE—Cardinals' Roy Shivers, No. 27, fumbles the ball after he is hit by the Redskins' Jack Pardee, Manuel Sistrunk, No. 64, recovered the ball for Washington, which went on to score a 20-0 victory.

Murtaugh May Quit; Status of Ellis Uncertain

By Joseph Durso
NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (NYT).—The Baltimore Orioles president today said he would head for Japan tomorrow to divide the spoils of World Series victory and the casualties.

Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh gives his attention to 2-year-old David Briles, son of Pittsburgh pitcher Nelson.

No. 1 concern for the new ball champions was the future of many Murtaugh's 14-year-old "rocking chair manager," as he has been called since 1957, but he had had a heart trouble that forced an early move to the dugout.

Murtaugh said, "and discuss it—my daughter, my two sons and my dear wife. We'll sit down and vote. Of course, my vote will be the deciding one."

Cardinals Get Shamsky
NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (NYT).—The New York Mets traded Art Shamsky and three minor league pitchers yesterday to the St. Louis Cardinals in an eight-player deal.

The Mets received right-handed pitcher Chuck Taylor, infielder-outfielder Jim Beauchamp and minor league players Parry Parker and Tom Coulter.

Dawson and Taylor also completed pass plays of 51 and 82 yards, both of which set up scores and in all, Taylor had five receptions good for 174 yards.

The victory put the Chiefs back into a first-place tie with the Oakland Raiders in the AFC West.

The first big break came in the second quarter's early moments after Steelers' missed a 24-yard field goal.

Patriots Boil as Fake Grass 'Melts'

By William N. Wallace
NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (NYT).—Is it possible for a football field "to melt"? Apparently it is. The synthetic surface in Miami's Orange Bowl has deteriorated to such a point that on a hot day the players slip and slide over the plastic grass.

The Dolphins players are accorded an edge because they are accustomed to the field and know what kind of shoes to wear.

"He'll tell you he'd rather play on good old grass," the Eagles' No. 1 quarterback, Rick Arrington, ready for the Giants Sunday.

Canadiens Seek Leadership, So Beliveau Will Speak

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (NYT).—Yes, the Montreal Canadiens, the Stanley Cup defenders, might have some problems, the team's assistant general manager said yesterday.

Floyd (Busher) Curry, the former Canadian player, said that the leadership inspired by Jean Beliveau and John Ferguson hasn't been replaced now that the two Montreal heroes have retired.

"I was blocking on Jerry Shay," said John Williams, the Colt guard, who took an inside stance and practically eliminated himself from the play while the end didn't know where to line up.

WCT Leader Doubtful of Tennis Peace

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (WP).—Lamar Hunt said yesterday there is little chance his World Championship Tennis, Inc., and the International Lawn Tennis Federation can settle their differences in time to avoid a total split for the 1973 season.

Hunt said, "I have to say no," Hunt said in a telephone interview. "We've discussed the subject about as thoroughly as it can be discussed. The goals of the two organizations are incompatible."

The ILTF because "it's not sunshine, eating strawberries and cream, and 128 plays playing."

In Europe, economic factors and better playing facilities in the United States were the major reasons cited by Hunt for this decision.

He said he was also asked if the owners conspired to blackball players and fix salaries and told newsmen:
